

Helen Caloggero Women's and Family Center to Combine Services in One Central Location

Maternity care, a birthing center, and other vital women's health services will be available in one central location to benefit St. Joseph Hospital patients as plans move forward on the development of the Helen Caloggero Women's and Family Center. The new facility is named after generous donor Marsha Moeller's late mother. The building will be located on the corner of Main Street and Stewart Drive, and is slated to open in 2023. The mother-baby services that are currently at nine different locations around the hospital will now be found in one central location.

A portion of the new facility will house

the Center for Pelvic Health at St. Joseph Hospital, which brings the latest medical and technological advances in women's health to the community. The on-site specialty team working at the Center will include fellowship-trained urogynecologists, colorectal surgeons, female urologists and pelvic floor physical therapists.

The new Center will also include a natural birth center, where women can receive the support and individualized care that midwives provide in a home-like setting with the freedom to define their childbearing experience. The birth center provides new options for women and their partners to have a natural labor and birth, supported by labor doulas and midwives within the safety of the hospital campus. Prenatal care and follow-up appointments can be completed at the adjacent Midwife Clinic, another convenient service for new families looking for a one-stop experience.

"It is an exciting time for women in our community," shares Michelle Genova, RN, chief nursing officer. "We've always placed patient care as the top priority, but the commitment to women has been elevated by our investment in locating so many unique services for women under one roof. The new Center will truly ease the way of our patients with innovative technology, new options for maternity care, convenient access to excellent physicians and certified nurse midwives – all housed in a beautiful addition to our campus."

The St. Joseph Hospital Foundation has an integral role in the development of the facility, with a $2.3 million fundraising goal. To learn how to support the future of the Helen Caloggero Women's and Family Center, visit sjofoundation.org or call 714-347-7900.
